Cory Grosser is an American product designer, interior architect, and art director. He is known for Happy Minimalism™, a design philosophy centered on clarity, reduction, and optimism. A professor at Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, Grosser's work focuses on how design decisions shape human behavior, understanding, and trust.

Calla Cove elevates outdoor lounging to moments of restorative calm and natural connection. Drawing inspiration from the sculpted forms of a Calla Lily, this collection achieves the perfect balance of relaxed comfort and architectural restraint. Offered in a broad scope of high-performance fabrics and contract-grade powder coat finishes, Calla Cove can be customized to suit any palette.

Bringing the warm welcome of the living room outdoors, Calla Cove's plush cushions and tailored stitching create an indulgent lounge experience. A high-performance, waterproof, antibacterial liner surrounds the four-layer comfort-core cushion, keeping it dry, resilient, and built for lasting support.
